Zambian Miners Kill Chinese Manager In Riot

ZAMBIAN MINERS have killed a Chinese manager by pushing a mine trolley at him during a riot at a coal mine in the south of the country.

A second Chinese was injured, as were several Zambians, during the riot on Saturday.

The workers were on strike at the mine in protest against delays in implementing a new minimum wage.

They were angry their wages were lower than a new minimum of $220 (£140) a month paid to shop workers.

Zambia's minister of labour has gone to the Chinese-owned Collum coal mine in Simatungwe, 325km (200 miles) south of the capital, Lusaka.

"Wu Shengzai, aged 50, has been killed by protesting workers after being hit by a trolley which was pushed towards him by the rioting miners as he ran away into the underground where he wanted to seek refuge," Southern province police commissioner Fred Mutondo told state news agency, the Zambia News and Information Services.

"He died on the spot while

• Miners' pay at Chinese-run mines was lower than at other foreign-owned mines, a 2011 report said his colleague is in hospital."

Last year, the Zambian government dropped charges against two Chinese managers accused of attempted murder after they fired on miners at the Collum mine during a pay dispute.

Chinese firms own several mines in southern African countries, including coal and copper operations.

Copper mining is one of Zambia's main industries, providing nearly three-quarters of the country's exports; many of the mining companies are foreign-owned, and China has invested more than $400m (£250m) in Zambia.

A 2011 report by Human Rights Watch (HRW) said that, despite improvements in recent years, safety and labour conditions at Chinese mines were worse than at other foreign-owned mines. BBC

Deadly Attack Off Nigeria Coast

GUNMEN IN Nigeria have stormed an oil barge off the coast, killing two Nigerian navy sailors and kidnapping four foreigners, a naval officer says.

The navy has joined the search for the gunmen off the Niger Delta. Two navy sailors, among a group providing security, were wounded in the raid.

The foreigners are from Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia and Iran.

Attacks in the Niger Delta have declined since a 2009 amnesty for militants ended years of conflict.

The ship that was attacked belongs to Sea Trucks Group, an oil services firm operating internationally.

The raid happened early in the morning, more than 30 nautical miles (56km) off the coast, the officer said.

The heavily polluted delta is Nigeria's main oil-producing region.

The incident will be of great concern to Nigeria's oil and gas industry at a time when the government has just announced that oil production has reached an all-time high of 2.7m barrels per day, the BBC's Will Ross in Lagos reports.

Critics say the peace deal which allowed the rise in output remains precarious.

The militants targeted foreign oil companies, drawing on local support in a region still blighted by poverty despite huge profits for the multinational energy corporations.

Local people wanted to see more of that wealth used to improve their housing and services.

Despite the amnesty, kidnappings of Nigerians in the Niger Delta have been happening at an alarming rate, our correspondent says. BBC

FALCON 7X EMERGENCY LANDING.

A Cargo Plane Falcon 7X left accra on saturday evening for Dallas Texas and after a few minutes there was a smoke coming out of the engine which prompt for an emergency landing at Lomé-Tokoin Airport (Guassingbé Eyadéma Int'l) few minutes after taken off from Kotoka International Airport in Ghana.

The plane started with a shaking when the pilot discovered that the wings of the Aircraft were having problems to fold in. The pilot then contacted the control aviation services personnel in Ghana who advised that the plane should make an emergency landing at the Lomé-Tokoin Airport.

There was smoke coming out from the plane when it landed, no one was hurt, thanks for the professional landing made by the pilot.

China Blasts U.S. Over Sea Disputes

CHINA BLASTED the United States on Saturday for its recent public criticism and urging of diplomacy to address territorial disputes in the South China Sea, saying the U.S. statement shows "total disregard for the facts" and sends "a seriously wrong message."

The blistering statement, from Chinese foreign ministry spokesman Qin Gang, follows one issued the previous day by a counterpart at the U.S. State Department.

The debate revolves around who controls islands and waters in the South China Sea. Countries such as Vietnam and the Philippines lay claim to some areas. Qin stated unequivocally Saturday that "China has indisputable sovereignty over the South China Sea and adjacent waters."

Acting U.S. State Department deputy spokesman Patrick Ventrell began his statement Friday insisting the United States does "not take a position on competing territorial claims... and (has) no territorial ambitions in the South China Sea."

Yet he added that Washington believes countries "should work collaboratively and diplomatically to resolve disputes without coercion, without intimidation, without threats and without the use of force."

Ventrell suggested that not all nations in the region are taking this latter approach, expressing

U.S. concern about the "increase in tensions in the South China Sea" in the form of "confrontational rhetoric," "coercive economic actions and the incidents around the Scarborough Reef, including the use of barriers to deny access."

In particular, China's upgrading of the administrative level of Sansha City and establishment of a new military garrison there covering disputed areas of the South China Sea run counter to collaborative diplomatic efforts to resolve differences and risk further escalating tensions in the region," Ventrell said, before urging the nations involved to agree on ways to peacefully address disputes.

Sasa Bomso Women Demo Against Odikro

FROM Morgan Owusu, Kumasi

WOMEN FROM Sasa Bomso in the Akyewa Kwabre district of the Ashanti region on Monday staged a protest at Manhyia Palace against what they referred to as the inhumane treatment being meted out to them by the town's Odikro.

Knowing the Asantehene Osei Tutu II would be coming in state to hear complaints relating to chieftaincy matters, the angry women staged a small demonstration at the premises of the palace.

To catch his attention, the women clad in black mourning clothes approached the Asantehene with a loud noise when he was about to sit in state.

Taken aback by the development, Osei Tutu II directed the Sanaabene to listen to the women's complaint and report back to him.

During that interaction, the aggrieved women led by Maame Ama Serwaa listed a number of ill-treatments being meted out to them by the Odikro.

She alleged that Nana Kofi Krah had demolished their farms with the view of selling the lands to prospective buyers, depriving them of their livelihoods.

Maame Serwaa, an elderly woman said the Odikro has also flooded the town with macho men who go about harassing residents.

According to her, the 'macho men' have been firing gunshots in the town whilst physically attacking people who they perceive are not in support of the Odikro's move to sell the lands.

In the course of a melee which occurred about three weeks ago, several people including the Gyasabene Pansa Kwaku Nyemman and some elders were brutalized and admitted at the Keenfo Anokye Teaching Hospital (KATH) in Kumasi for medical attention, she said.

She asserted that the people who were brutally attacked that fateful day were rivals of the town who have been revising the arbitrary sale of lands by Nana Kofi Krah.

Maame Serwaa claimed the Odikro has been making life uncomfortable for them in the town and that if the Asantehene does not take the necessary steps to address the situation they would pack their bags and move to Manhyia.

After listening attentively to the women, the Sanaabene assured them their concerns would be forwarded to the Asantehene and that they should report to him for feedback the following week.

Tema Police Chief Tough On Criminals

FROM Vincent Kubi, Tema

TEMA REGIONAL Police Commander, DCOP Maxwell Atingane has promised to make the region unattractive for criminals who might think of operating in the area.

According to him, "Police in the Tema speaking with a serious tone in the morning about his outfit's readiness to ensure the forthcoming general elections were held smoothly, DCOP Atingane noted it will provide adequate security to all citizens to create a pleasant environment for the December polls.

"The Tema region has been zoned into sectors, and each has an assigned patrol team that will be operating constantly with standby teams who will be assisting the patrol teams when a situation calls for a backup," he explained.

The DCOP further said police investigators would be positioned at various police stations in the region to specifically handle electoral matters, calling for the full cooperation of the general public in the bid to snuff out criminals.

He said the police had devised an effective intelligence gathering system to prevent any nasty incidents adding they will punish those guilty of offences so the citizenry can go about their business safely.

The regional police commander promised a 24-hour effective police mobile patrol, calling on the public not to hesitate to call the police operation room on the following numbers 0303 202936, 0303 202937, 0303 211601, 0242526451 and 0244920619 for swift response to issues that may arise during the elections.

Inspector Appiah said the complainant is a taxi driver and lives with the convict at Akim Swedru in the Birnin South district.

He said on May 22, 2012 at about 0345 hours, the complainant was driving a taxi with registration number GW 2092-11 from Akim Swedru towards Akim Oda in the Birnin Central municipality when he was stopped by Adu, who was carrying a sack.

The prosecutor said when Adu boarded the taxi he started behaving suspiciously so the driver drove straight to the police station and reported Adu's behaviour to them.

He said when the sacks he was carrying were opened, they found a dead goat estimated at GH¢90 and three fowls valued at GH¢45.

Inspector Appiah said the convict initially told the police during interrogation that he picked up the dead goat by the roadside when the fowls belonged to him.

Machomen Attack Adankwame

FROM I.F. Joe Awuah Jr., Kumasi

SEVERAL INNOCENT people at Adankwame, near Kumasi in the Ashanti region, have been wounded by some macho men who are said to be raiding the area in recent times.

Most of the victims of these macho men are people who are loyal to Nana Kwaku Nsiah, who claims to be the Asantehene's Gyasi-hene of the Bantama 'Baamu' and the rightful caretaker of the Adankwame lands for Otumfuo.

Narrating the incident to DAILY GUIDE, Nana Nsiah alleged that one Madam Abena Agyeman, whom he had a protracted land tussle with at the Asantehene's palace, was sponsoring the hoodlums to attack his supporters without any provocation. He disclosed that the Adankwame land dispute dated back to several decades; however he was adjudged the rightful owner of the Adankwame lands when the matter was brought before the late Otumfuo, Opoku Ware II in 1988.

According to him, his opponents, who were declared losers, were not content with the Asantehene's ruling so they were still contesting the matter at the Manhyia Palace.

Nana Nsiah noted that instead of waiting for Otumfuo to rule on the matter, his opponents had chosen to engage macho men to terrorize him and his loyalists.

He alleged that innocent people who had done no wrong had been butchered by these macho men who are led by one CD, however, all efforts being made to get these men arrested had proved futile.

Nana Nsiah noted that aside causing severe injuries to people, including women, the macho men had also caused massive destruction to properties running into several billions of old Ghana cedis.

He claimed that his factory and houses belonging to him and most of his loyalists in the area had been burnt down by the gangsters but nothing had been done to the perpetrators.

Nana Nsiah also alleged that the macho men forcibly took over his 140 acre orange farm about two years ago and had been selling the farm's produce to enrich themselves.

He has however appealed to government to let the law prevail, noting that despite his numerous reports

GOLD FRAUDSTERS CASE ADJOURNED

By Awuda Malana

At the supreme high court hearing yesterday in the case between Chief Alimamy Kamara and the 3 gold fraudsters: Mamanday Kondewa, Joseph Nyadebo and Mohammed Haruna, the preceding Judge request that the court should proceed with facts and not misleading information's that will delay the court proceedings.

The lawyers for the complainants who have been jailed already argued that their clients have been giving high court jailed sentences that they do not deserve. They also asked that the product be return to its country of origin.

The lawyer representing the owner of the Gold Chief Alimamy Kamara argued that since the complainants have been jailed, there is no need for a request that product to be sent to the country of origin.

Argument between the lawyer of the complainants and the owner of the gold went on till the Supreme Court judge adjourned the case for final court hearing sits to Wednesday 27th June.

Fiawornu Gets 7 Years For Defilement

FROM Doreas Larbi, Tema

THE TEMA Circuit Court 'A' presided over by Mr. Kyel Baffour has sentenced a 24-year-old labourer to seven years in prison with hard labour for defiling a 12-year-old pupil of Winners Basic School.

The accused, Lawrence Fiawornu, according to the court, lived at Bankuman, a suburb of Tema New Town, with both the victim and complainant and shared a common verandah.

The accused, who has now been convicted, was arrested in 2009 and brought before the court but pleaded not guilty, however the court found him guilty of the offence after investigations and sentenced him as such.

Briefing the court, the prosecutor Inspector Samuel Dadzie told the court that on November 13, 2009 at about 1:30 pm, both the victim and the complainant were sleeping on the verandah when the victim suddenly disappeared.

The complainant, according to the prosecutor, who was wondering where the victim had gone to, shouted her name. However, to the surprise of the complainant, the victim responded from the convict's room and came out.

When she was asked what she was doing in the room with the convict, the victim told the complainant that Lawrence forcibly had sexual intercourse with her.

The prosecutor further told the court that the complainant quickly confronted Lawrence about what the victim had told her and he admitted the offence. The complainant then called in her brother and sent the convict to the police station, and made a report where he was re-arrested and detained for investigations.

According to the prosecutor, a police medical form was issued to the complainant to send the victim to the hospital for examination and treatment. He added that the medical officer's report indicated that the victim's hymen had been broken. The report also revealed that the victim was bleeding and discharging some fluid in her vagina.

The convict was therefore put before the court after police investigations and the court sentenced him to seven years after its proceedings.

Police Probe 75-Year Old Grandma

BY Charles Takyl-Boado

ESTHER TACKIE, a 75-year-old woman, is currently being held and investigated by the police at Korle Bu for the alleged murder of her 8-month granddaughter.

Two attendants at a refuse dump near the famous 'Tuesday market' in Korle Gonno, a suburb of Accra, accosted and handed her over to the police on Thursday evening around 11pm.

Greater Accra Regional Public Relations officer of the Ghana Police Service, Deputy Superintendent of Police (DSP), Freeman Tettey, who confirmed the incident to DAILY GUIDE, said the young men spotted the old lady approaching the refuse dump around 10:48pm with a basket in hand.

"As to whether the child died or was killed is another issue that we have to unravel," he said.

The basket, according to him, was neatly covered like food being sent to a patient at a hospital.

But, DSP Tettey said the old woman's body language made the refuse dump attendants, who have been identified as workers of waste management company Zoomlion Ghana Limited, suspicious and therefore demanded to see the contents of the basket.

Upon enquiries, they were said to have discovered the lifeless body of a baby believed to be about 8 months draped in a green over-all and concealed in a polythene bag.

They therefore dragged the old woman to the Korle Bu police station where upon interrogation, admitted she was going to dump the baby in the refuse.

The old lady was also said to have admitted that the dead baby was her grandchild, her son, Okaidia's, child.

The old lady seemed to have given two conflicting accounts to the police about the actual time the baby died.

In her initial statement, she claimed the child fell sick and died before she was arrested and sent to the police station.

She subsequently told the detectives that when the baby died, she together with the baby's parents went to bury the body behind the room of a man whose name was given as Gaddafi in the same neighbourhood. However, Gaddafi was said to have gotten angry and asked them to exhume the body which they obliged.

After exhuming the body, the granny was reported to have told the police she was tasked to go and dump the baby on the refuse dump but she run out of luck and was accosted and handed over to the police.

A provisional charge of murder has since been slapped on the old woman until proven otherwise.

The police have started searching for the father and mother of the dead baby, a lady whose name was only given as Odey.

The body of baby has since been deposited at the morgue of the Korle Bu Teaching Hospital pending autopsy whilst the police have started investigating the case.

Court Directs Daasebre

FROM Thomas Fosu Jr, Koforidua

A KOFORIDUA High Court has directed the Omanhene of the New Juaben Traditional Area, Daasebre Prof (Emeritus) Oti Boateng and for that matter the New Juaben Traditional Council to submit signed chieftaincy declaration forms presented to it by the Suhyenene, Okogyeman Ankamah Basapon to the Eastern Regional House of Chiefs for onward transmission to the National House of Chiefs to enable him to be gazetted as a chief of Suhyen.

The Suhyenene, who is also the Mponuhene of the New Juaben Traditional Area in the Eastern region, was forced to take the Omanhene to court after he refused to sign his chieftaincy declaration forms to enable him to be gazetted on the grounds that the Suhyenene was not only properly entooled but had also not sworn an oath of allegiance to him.

The High Court, presided over by Justice Henry Kwofie in a ruling on June 8, this year, said the Omanhene has no locus in relation to the Chieftaincy Act 2008 (Act 759) to prevent the Suhyenene from being gazetted because the Supreme Court had effectively dealt with Suhyen chieftaincy issue in 2006 after the Eastern Regional House of Chiefs had recognized the applicant as the substantive chief of Suhyen with an appeal by the Ekuona family faction's being thrown out by the Supreme Court and the ruling of the Regional and National Houses of chiefs in connection with that being upheld.

The respondent, Daasebre Oti Boateng is neither a member of the Asona family of Suhyen nor a kingmaker of the Suhyen stool and eventually did not deny that the applicant has been nominated, elected and installed as Suhyenene. There is no requirement in the Act for the purpose of the Act only when he had complied with or effected the constitutional relations between him and another chief. The respondent's contention that the applicant was not a chief because he has not yet sworn the oath of allegiance to him (respondent) as the paramount chief is untenable," the judge said in his ruling.

"It seems to me that there is some justification for the applicant's assertion that the respondent, Daasebre Oti Boateng has motives other than legal for refusing to forward his chieftaincy declaration forms to the Eastern Regional House of Chiefs for onward transmission to the National House of Chiefs. Accordingly it is hereby ordered that the respondent pursuant to the provisions of the Chieftaincy Act reports changes in the New Juaben Traditional Council by forwarding the applicants duly completed chieftaincy declaration forms to the Eastern regional House of Chiefs for onward transmission to the National House of Chiefs for registration of the applicant in the national register of chiefs. There will be no order as to costs," Justice Henry Kwofie further said in his ruling.

The Suhyenene, Okogyeman Ankamah Basapon, later in an interview, said the court ruling represented victory for Suhyenman because the town had been deprived of development as a result of this protracted chieftaincy dispute.

"I am calling on all indigenes of Suhyen to unite in one purpose for the benefit of the town's development now that the way have been paved by the court for me to be gazetted and lead my people," Okogyeman Ankamah Basapon said, stressing that he was prepared mentally and physically to help bring development to the town and for Suhyen to take its rightful place in the New Juaben Traditional Area.

The taxi cab was however seen parked at a spot near the Sefwi Asawinso Police Station, with his sandals and ignition key in the vehicle.

A report was made to the police and the suspect was arrested.

On July 1, 2012, a search party was organized by the police and it found the body of the deceased in the Krokosuo Forest Reserve near Breku Line. The deceased was wearing a pair of jeans over a red t-shirt.

When the police inspected the body, they found syringe marks on the right arm and the chest, indicating the deceased's blood was drained.

The body has been deposited at Juabeso Government Hospital for autopsy, while police investigations continue.

In the suspect's caution statement, he admitted taking the deceased to Breku Line, but said he did not know anything about his death.

Philanthropist Donates To Orphanage

BY Mariam Ama Yeduah

THE CHRIST Like Foundation in collaboration with ADK Consortium has donated food and basic household items to the Countryside Orphanage at Barjasse in fulfillment of the biblical directive to help the needy.

The foundation presented six bags of rice, four bags of 'gari', four bags of maize, four boxes of tomato paste, two gallons of cooking oil, four bags of sanitary rolls, 15 loaves of bread, baby diapers, toothbrushes, biscuits, beverages, toiletries, soap, washing detergent, a box of fish and a cash donation of GH¢1000.

Presenting the items, Pastor Alice Aduamah Odoro, President of the foundation said "we are not giving because we have more than we want or we need, but we just want to share the little that we have with those who don't have."

She said when she was in school she used to pay her colleagues' school fees with her pocket money and this has been a source of blessing to her ever since.

"I give alms to the needy people especially on my birthday to share my happiness with them," she said.

Pastor Alice promised to make donations annually to support the upbringing of children at the orphanage.

On behalf of the inmates, Emma Bofo Yeboah, founder and caretaker of the orphanage received the items and promised to use them in support of the children to prepare them for the challenges of life with confidence.

She expressed her gratitude to the Christ Like Foundation and ADK Consortium for their wonderful gifts to the home.

Children especially, are gifts from God and the basis of our survival, said

Madam Emma.

She noted that orphans do not have the privilege of living a normal life therefore all forms of assistance and love for these less fortunate ones can make great difference.
